VOLUNTEERS

Every person has a role in strengthening the community. Volunteers will be vital to L.A. Kitchen's mission. L.A. Kitchen will recruit Angelenos to volunteer in our commercial kitchen and processing hub, where they will transform raw fruits and vegetables into nutritious meals and snacks. L.A. Kitchen volunteers will represent a wide cross section of the community, and we will specialize in providing intergenerational volunteer opportunities that engage both older adults and local students. Volunteers will work side-by-side with job trainee students and graduates, challenging traditional barriers that divide communities.

At L.A. Kitchen, all volunteers have the right to:

- Work in a safe environment.
- Be treated with respect by all staff members.
- Be engaged in meaningful work and be actively included regardless of physical limitations.
- Be told what impact their work made in the community.
- Ask any staff member questions about our work.
- A transparent process for providing feedback.
- Receive a copy of our financial information or annual report.

More than a fourth of all Americans volunteer, performing about 7.9 billion hours of service each year.

22% of Los Angeles residents volunteer, performing about 295.7 million hours of service each year.
